OBJECTIVE: Political Science is closely linked with Law as legal instruments are formulated as a system expression directly emanating from the political superstructure. For example, a democratic system of law-making and implementation is quite different from a dictatorial process of expression of law and justice. The history of Political Thought has a direct bearing on the process of Constitutionalism and the development of the Constitution system in the 19th and 20th centuries. A strong grounding in the knowledge of Political Science helps in a better appreciation of jurisprudential development in any legal system.

COURSE LEARNING OUTCOMES: After studying the course, the learner would-

- Understand the different principles and approaches of politics and will promote how they are reflected in the organizing of social and business life.
- Understand many frames by which the idea of a political community is debated.

OBJECTIVE: Man enters into a variety of contracts from dawn to dusk and this activity increases with the increasing trade, commerce and industry. Modern living would be impossible if the law does not recognize this contract-making power of man. Roscoe Pound made his famous observation—“Wealth, in a commercial age, is made up largely of Promises”. The conferment and protection by law of this contract make the power of man to regulate and define their relations in the best possible manner. However, the contours of contractual relations in pre- and post-independence eras cannot necessarily be the same. In any society, contractual relations are governed by certain basic and general principles which are standardized in the form of the Indian Contract Act, 1872.
